Dear Mr. Kinsella:

I am very sorry for taking such a long time to get back to you regarding your proposal for an article on contract theory and intellectual property rights. We've been kicking around the idea, and have decided that it is probably not our fare — though interesting.

In reviewing your proposal, I notice that your argument resembles that of Williamson M. Evers "Title Transfer Theory of Contract," which appeared in JLS early on. Are you familiar with Evers' argument?

Thanks for thinking of us. I'm glad Wendy McElroy suggested us to you, and I hope you will consider us again . . .

Sincerely,

Timothy Virkkala

P.S. If you are interested, you may communicate with me via e-mail at virkkala@olympus.net.
